ALLIES IN CATANIA'S SUBURBS City Shelled From Sea

EIGHTH Army tanks were reported from Algiers last night to be operating in the suburbs of Catania, which, 24 hours earlier, from a distance of only five miles, was heavily bombarded from the sea. The bombardment lasted thirty minutes, and, according to Reuter, great damage was done.

Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Headquarters in North Africa states this morning that the battle for Catania is in its final phase. He adds that General Montgomery appears to be trying to by-pass the city, as Paterno, north-west of Catania, is officially said to have been raided by 'planes " in front of the advance of the Allied troops."

Americans near Enna

Meantime, the Americans have advanced to within 17 miles of Enna, key communications point in the centre of the island, and have captured Agrigento and Porto Empodocle. The capture of Lentini was announced during the week-end.

A third of Sicily is now reported to be in Allied hands, and more than 30,000 prisoners have been taken.

COAST ROAD BOMBED

Following the report that Eighth Army tanks have entered the suburbs of Catania, Algiers Radio stated last night:—"The coastal road north from Catania towards Messina is being constantly bombed by the British, who are cutting off the retreat of the defenders."

Morocco radio, quoted by Reuter, said early to-day: "The fall of Catania seems imminent."

Reuter's Special Correspondent cabled last night from Allied Headquarters, North Africa:—"Allied air forces which have attacked Paterno, north-west of Catania, are officially described here as having bombed the town 'in front of the advance of Allied ground troops.' Paterno is about eleven miles northwest of Catania. This would [illegible]

BITTER FIGHTING

General Montgomery's spearhead, after cleaving a path across the Catanian Plain, is now meeting with fierce German opposition in a final, tremendous assault on the flaming and wrecked city of Catania, says Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied H.Q. Allied airmen, returning to advanced bases yesterday after the latest air onslaught on Catania, told of a battle in the southern suburbs. The fighting is officially described as "bitter and fierce."

Here is other main news from the battlefield which has reached Allied H.Q. in the past few hours:—

One-third of Sicily is now occupied by the Allied armies after a campaign of only eight days;

More than 30,000 prisoners are in Allied cages—two-thirds of them captured in the area where the American Seventh Army is operating;

Eighth Army units making a drive parallel to the main British spearhead are now fighting among the marshes at the mouth of the three rivers intersecting the Catanian Plain;

After a thrust of 22 miles inland from Gela Americans have repulsed an Axis counter-attack in the Barrafranca area, destroying two out of a force of 16 tanks. This column is now driving north to cut the main cross-Sicily central highway in the region of Caltanisetta;

Other units of General Patton's U.S. Army on the Allied left flank have occupied Agrigento, the most important town on the south coast, a short distance inland from Porto Empedocle, which Algiers radio stated last night, has also been taken by U.S. Rangers.

Shells from the Eighth Army's mobile guns are joining the combined air and sea bombardment in the last terrific hammering which Catania is now taking. The battle is growing in intensity, with the Axis on the city's southern approaches grimly defending every yard of ground.

The advance continues right along the Allied line from Catania to Agrigento. The Eighth Army units on the coast are finding their march slowed temporarily by the ground.

While the battle for Catania is obviously the gravest menace to the Axis positions in the island, the steady American advance through the mountains towards the Caltanissetta area is developing into another serious threat.

STOOD FIRM

This force—the one which threw back the Axis counter-attack near Gela last week—has just fought another successful engagement in the hills south of Barrafranca. Axis infantry, supported by 16 tanks, followed similar tactics to those used at Gela, but the Americans stood firm and threw back the counter-blow, which cost the Axis two tanks.

The Allied foothold is rapidly developing into a stranglehold, with the Axis being thrust back into areas where his movement is severely restricted. The situation is not unlike that which occurred in Tunisia when the Axis was penned in the Cape Bon Peninsula.

The total of 30,000 prisoners was reached at midnight on Friday—since when more have been captured. Yet another Italian divisioual commander has been taken prisoner—the general commanding the 207th Coast Defence Division. His entire staff was also taken. This general had held his command for only 48 hours.

The entire headquarters staff of he 10th Bersaglieri has also been captured, while the fighting strength of these two units has been destroyed.

Allied Line of 100 Miles

Reuter's Special Correspondent cabled from Allied H.Q. this morning:—

The Allied front, save for a slight bulge to the south in the centre, is now straight across the island over a distance of more than 100 miles.

A Times telegram from Algiers says that the Italian 207th Coastal Division and the 10th Bersaglieri Regiment are now annihilated and, for the most part, captured. The commander of the Division, General Laveronte, his staff and the headquarters of the 10th Bersaglieri have been taken prisoner.—(Copyright—per Press Association.)

The Navy Department disclosed in Washington last night that the invasion forces which joined the U.S. troops in North Africa in preparation for the attack on Sicily were moved across the Atlantic for eight months without loss.

Referring to the assignment of American warships to the British Mediterranean Fleet, it said: "These large U.S. units took part in the bombardment of Axis shore installations on Sicily."—(Reuter.)

Robert Eden, Maryland's last provincial Governor and an ancestor of Mr. Anthony Eden, was honoured when a Liberty ship, named in his memory, was launched yesterday at Baltimore. It was the 158th Liberty ship constructed by the Bethlehem Fairfield shipyards.—(A.P.)

'Condition of Italy Grave'

—Scorza

SIGNOR CARLO SCORZA, Fascist Party Secretary, broadcasting from Rome last night, said: "Italy is forced to fight a hard war—a war to the death. Our condition, we confess, is very grave.

"Two Empires, the richest in the world, are now bearing down on Italy.

"Italians know that this is a war of races, with the British and Americans as vanguards of the inferior hordes. We do not hesitate to proclaim that occupied territories are of only relative importance.

"The most severe penalties must fall on those who do not resist, and who are not willing to die at their posts. To resist is not enough.

"With the immediate help of Germany, and with the more remote, but, nevertheless, effective help of Japan, Italy—a handful of men against millions upon millions of the enemy, an inch of soil against vast continents under enemy control, a mere stretch of sea against the vast oceans held by the enemy—Italy, and Italy alone, has for three years sustained the most terrible war ever known to history.

"For two years Italy's fleet has dominated the Mediterranean against the most powerful fleet in the world. Italy's air fleets have dominated the skies against the riches of the most powerful industries of the world.

"Italy's soldiers have victoriously taken the war into the enemy's camp. For more than two years Britain had to suffer at the hands of our daring attacks."

"This is a war of religion, institutions and bread. Italy is defending her Catholic faith—her traditional and modern institutions.

"We confess openly that our condition is very serious, but, nevertheless, it is not more serious than that of the enemy. We are not vainly trying to comfort ourselves if we say that although at the moment the enemy is victorious and powerful we still have him by the throat. Time is our enemy's most threatening foe. If we resist, the initiative will pass out of the enemy's hands.

"The enemy is destroying our cities, but what of it? Our cities have been destroyed thousands of times in history—they have always risen more beautiful and greater than before.

NOW OR NEVER

"Resist, resist, resist. If the enemy should win what would lie in store for us, the nation would be dismembered. The fittest among us would be sent to work in the mines of the Urals and Steppes. The less fit among us would be forced to grow flowers for the 'ladies.' Our factories would be closed, our ports deserted of our ships. Our hotels, full of rowdy British and American tourists, would bear witness to our degradation. Why should we despair to-day when we stand united?

"It is to-day or never. Italy is to day in danger more than at any time in her long history."—(Reuter.)

Pope Writes to Roosevelt

THE Pope has sent a personal letter by special courier to President Roosevelt, according to the German overseas radio last night.

Reports from Vatican circles indicate, declared the announcer, that the message is the Pope's reply to President Roosevelt's recent message stating that the neutral status of the Vatican City and its possessions would be respected by British and American troops. The Pope's communication, it is stated, is not intended for publication. Its contents are unknown.—(Reuter.)

A SCENE AT AGRIGENTO

THE Temple of Concord, Agrigento, Agrigento was called by Pindar "the most beautiful city of the mortals."

Fierce Raid on Naples: Arsenal Hit

THE heaviest air attack yet made on any Italian city was delivered on Saturday, when over 500 bombers raided the great port of Naples.

The raid occupied 90 minutes. Waves of heavy and medium bombers dropped 2-ton and 1,000-lb. bombs.

Tremendous explosions rocked the entire city, states Reuter's special correspondent at Allied H.Q. One was in the royal arsenal and the other from an ammunition train. The torpedo factory was also hit. Air crews flying high over the target felt the shock of the explosions.

Flames shot hundreds of feet into the air as the arsenal was hit, and columns of smoke more than two miles high rose from the city.

The attack began in the early-morning darkness. R.A.F. Wellingtons of the North-West African Command went in first, and as dawn broke Flying Fortresses attacked without interference from fighters. After them came the smaller Marauders and Mitchells, escorted by Lightning fighters.

This time formations of fighters swooped on the attackers, and they were engaged by the Lightnings.

At this point the attack became a "two-way" operation. More than 75 Liberators from Middle East bases of the U.S.A.A.F. flew in to unload about 120 tons of bombs, chiefly on the marshalling yards and other railway installations. A heavy concentration of hits covered the target area. Railway tracks were torn up, and bursts were seen near the arsenal, gasworks, railway stores and engine shops.

Fierce fighter opposition was met, and Reuter's correspondent states that 21 Axis 'planes were shot down and seven others probably destroyed. One Liberator was lost.

As the raiders wheeled for home fresh formations of Mitchells attacked the railway yards. They experienced fierce a.-a. fire.

Fires started the previous night by light bombers at the railway yards, and the airfield at Capodochino nearby, were still burning when the first 'planes reached the city.

War-time Industrial Statistics

AFTER three and a half years of war Irish industry was employing in March last 70,000 people in the production of transportable goods, compared with 82,000 in September, 1939, or 85 per cent. of the total industrial personnel.

Details of industrial production are given by the Council of the Federation of Irish Manufacturers, Ltd., which states that the food, drink, tobacco, paper-manufacturing industries, and the miscellaneous group show a reduction of less than 10 per cent., while apparel, metal machinery manufacture, chemicals, fats, oils and fertilizers show a decline of less than 15 per cent. Textiles, Iron and steel, and building materials have fallen less than 40 per cent., and vehicle assembly and building less than 60 per cent., but over 40 per cent. The leather industries showed an increase of 22 per cent.

Making allowance for the difference in costs, the volume of production for the last quarter of 1942 was 81 per cent. of that of the same period in 1936, thirteen industries showing an increase on the figures in that year. Employers, it is stated, are going to the utmost limit in maintaining as many workers as possible, and the Council adds that it is aware that "there is an inevitable deterioration in the general employment position, which has obviously been more marked in the last three months than in other periods. The Council members, however, believe that the public will appreciate the extent to which manufacturers made efforts to acquire reserve materials, with the remarkable result that at the commencement of the fourth year of the war the fabric of industry was still intact, even if, in certain sections, the position was extremely serious."

Matches were Scarce

During the week-end the request for "a light, please," became intensified all over Dublin. Holiday-makers, who called on their tobacconists on Saturday, while able to get their supplies of cigarettes and tobacco, had to go away matchless.

A leading Dublin tobacconist said that the shortage was due to the fact that they were now finding it impossible to confine supplies to regular customers. A visitor coming into the shop for cigarettes or tobacco, seeing a regular customer being supplied with matches, ventured a polite request, and invariably was supplied with a box.

Italian Reply to Allies

Rome radio on Saturday broadcast this official reply to the Churchill-Roosevelt appeal to the Italian people:—

"Our enemies have once again resorted to threats. Italians have been asked to betray their cause and place themselves at the disposal of the invaders.

"Even if Italy surrendered it would not mean that she had found peace again. The people would still be in the war. They would be asked by the invaders to turn their weapons against Germany. Italy would have to give up her agricultural, industrial, financial, and military resources to the invader. Our country would continue to suffer the horrors of war. We would suffer even more. The hard trials we have already endured would have been in vain.

"Common sense tells us that Italy will become a battlefield in any case. If, as the British and Americans say, their goal is Berlin, then their way to it is Italy. Italians know full well that for them this war is one of life or death."—(Reuter.)

Three Deaths in Fire

Despite rescue efforts by neighbours and firemen, three people lost their lives in a blazing house at Everton, Liverpool, yesterday. They were Mrs. J. Gibson (60), her daughter, Mrs. E. Morton (27), and John Gibson (16), a relative.

Red Armies Squeezing Orel into Cul de Sac

THE Soviet positions about Orel last night, on the sixth day of the Russian offensive, were about 15 miles to the east, 20 miles to the west, and between 35 and 40 miles south. North-west of the town a river—the Oka—on the western flank of the gap torn in the German positions has been forced and bridgeheads established along a considerable distance.

To the south the Russians are approaching the vital Orel-Briansk railway. A block of territory 500 miles square, Reuter reports from Moscow, is being consolidated to form a huge salient, which will leave Orel in a narrow cul-de-sac.

The German communiqué states that in the Orel region heavy defensive fighting continues.

In Sight of Key Positions

In a new advance of from 6 to 8 miles three armies, it is claimed, are closing in on Orel, and have taken eight more villages and destroyed over 200 German tanks. Heavy German counter-attacks at the southern end of this front have been repelled in the last 24 hours, it is stated, and the Russians there are in sight of some of the German key positions.

Soviet infantry is moving up systematically, especially in the North-west sector.

The German Command on Saturday brought a fresh tank division into the area north-west of Orel.

In the Kuban, after many weeks of inactivity, the Soviet North Caucasus army on Saturday, it was claimed, captured a key position of great significance. The Germans have now been in Novorossisk for more than 10 months, but all the time the left flank of the Soviet North Caucasus army has firmly held the eastern side of the small bay around which Novorossisk is built.

Two ranges of high-peaked hills lie on each side of the only rail line from Novorossisk. One of these, captured on Saturday, dominates the rail line only a few miles north-east of Novorossisk itself, and may, it is stated, prove the turning point in the long investiture of the Black Sea port.

COMMUNIQUE

Saturday's German communiqué said:—"The battle on the Eastern front has spread to the Southern front. On the Kuban bridgehead the enemy vainly continued his attacks against a group of heights to the west of Krimskaya.

"After fierce artillery fire, the Soviets launched an attack on the Mius and Donetz front. Their attempts to break through with strong infantry and tank forces were frustrated. Counter-attacks, to seal small, local breaches, are in progress.

"In the Orel region heavy defensive fighting continues with undiminished violence.

"A total of 415 Soviet tanks were destroyed on Saturday.

"The Luftwaffe intervened in the heavy defensive ground battles with bomber and close-range fighter squadrons, and inflicted heavy losses on the Soviet Air Force, shooting down 127 aircraft. During the night enemy railway supply lines were attacked."

The German News Agency last night reported Soviet activity north of Lake Ilmen and near Leningrad, and stated that after brief exchanges of fire the Soviets were pushed back to their starting point.

"The great trial of strength in the central sector of the eastern front," the German News Agency stated, "has entered a new phase with the extension by the Soviets of their diversionary attempts to the Mius-Donetz front. The most tremendous battle of equipment of the entire war is now raging in the Kuban bridgehead, through the Mius and the Byelgorod sectors to the sector north of Orel."

Last night's Soviet communiqué said: "During Sunday our forces in the Orel sector, overcoming enemy resistance, continued to advance and moved forward from 4 to 6 kilometres (2 to 3 miles). In the Byelgorod sector there was intensive reconnaissance activity.

"During Saturday, in the Orel sector, Soviet troops disabled or destroyed 78 German tanks and 20 armoured cars. In air fights and by anti-aircraft fire 137 enemy aircraft were destroyed."

AMBASSADOR'S SUMMING UP

FORMER Chinese Ambassador to Russia, Shao Litze, writing from Chungking, states: "If the Germans failed in the first summer offensives, when the Russians were facing almost impossible odds, the much-talked of third summer offensive has little prospect of success."—(Reuter.)

Candidates for Stormont

Dr. W. Calwell, D.P.H., of Red Hall, Ballycarry, has been chosen as Labour candidate for the Carrick seat in the Northern Parliament vacated by Mr. John F. Gordon, a former Minister of Labour. The Unionists have not yet chosen their candidate. The names of Mr. John Campbell and Major L. E. Curran, K.C., have been mentioned.

L.D.F. Exercises

Using a battery of heavy howitzers the Field Artillery unit of the L.D.F. yesterday shelled selected targets on the South side of the Liffey during exercises between the city and Lucan. Army officers who witnessed them, among them Col. J. Hogan, O.C. Eastern Command, Col. Neill McNeill, Col. J. V. Lawless and Commandant F. Feehan, expressed satisfaction with the work of the unit.

JAPANESE RAID

Japanese 'planes have raided American positions on Guadalcanal for the first time for more than a month, causing "some damage to personnel" and inflicting light damage on installations, said last night's U.S. Navy Department communiqué.

About 150 U.S. seamen, who spent a week on a Japanese-occupied island in the New Georgia group, after the Helena sank in the first battle of Kula Gulf, were daringly rescued by American destroyers, it was announced yesterday at Allied H.Q., South Pacific.—(Associated Press.)

Raids on Burma

Yesterday's U.S. Air Force communiqué reported that medium bombers on Saturday dropped several tons of bombs on the cotton mills at Myingyan, Burma. Many buildings were hit. The railroad and rolling stock at Monywa and near the Mu River bridge were also bombed. 40 fighters attacked supply and troop centres at Chanmawng Ga and Kalum Ga, in Northern Burma.

The India joint war communiqué said that R.A.F. fighters attacked the Hunters Bay area on Saturday, and sank four supply sampans near Myebon, and another near Elizabeth Island. Further south, between Taungup and Kalabyin, Beaufighters" targets in low level attacks included a schooner, sampans and two bridges. Troop positions in the Sinoh area and near Kalemyo were also hit.

JAPANESE LOSSES IN PACIFIC

THE largest number of 'planes ever used in a single attack in the South-West Pacific sank seven Japanese ships out of 15, off Buinfaisi, on the southern tip of Bougainville, in the Solomons, says Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied H.Q., South-West Pacific.

In the raid, which lasted twenty minutes, a light cruiser, two destroyers, a submarine chaser, a tanker, and two cargo ships were sent to the bottom.

A swarm of Japanese fighters took the air to intercept the Allied aircraft, and a great air battle followed, in which 49 Japanese 'planes were shot down. Six Allied 'planes were lost.

During the previous night heavy bombers made continuous attacks for nine hours on the neighbouring Kahili Aerodrome. Over 500 miles to the west medium bombers dropped 50 tons of high explosives on objectives at Salamaua, in New Guinea, scoring direct hits on ammunition and fuel dumps. Fires started at Gautem, in Timor, was visible 60 miles away.

In Holiday Travelling

During the August bank holiday week-end some G.S.R. 'buses will leave Dublin an hour to two hours later than usual.

There will also be changes in some of the Limerick, Cork, Tralee and Sligo services, and on Monday the Limerick-Killaloe-Nenagh, Cork-Newcastle West, Cork-Ballyvourney, Cork-Rylane and Cork-Donoughmore services will be cancelled.

About half of Sweden's entire military forces will be under arms, foreign observers believe, when she has completed mobilisation for the largest summer manœuvres she has ever held. A mounting wave of Swedish opinion has been demanding this move for many months.—(Reuter.)

Franco Might Restore Monarchy

General Franco, in week-end speeches in Madrid, told Spaniards that he might eventually restore the monarchy, but only on condition that it worked with the Falange Party. His words were a frank warning to opposing politicos, moneyed monarchists, and "foreign propagandists" that he would tolerate no opposition to his programme.—(Associated Press.)

AIR DUELS FOUGHT OVER GERMANY

At least fifty German fighters were destroyed in a series of great air battles above the clouds during United States Flying Fortress raids on Amsterdam and North-West Germany in daylight on Saturday. Although the Fortresses penetrated into Germany without a fighter escort, only two failed to get back, stated an announcement from the United States Army Headquarters, European Theatre of Operations.

Industrial targets were attacked, and bursts were seen in the target areas.

The Fortresses sweeping into Germany were hit by swarms of German fighters on their way home, according to the statement, which added:—"The number of fighters encountered was in excess of 200, and indicates that the enemy apparently is maintaining its strong defences over North-West Germany, despite demands from other fronts."

Yesterday's German communiqué stated:—"After an attempt by North-American bomber formations to penetrate into the German Bight (Gulf of Heligoland) had been forestalled by German fighter squadrons, the enemy attacked Dutch territory.

"Bombs were dropped on residential quarters in Amsterdam. The population suffered considerable losses. Ten four-engined bombers were shot down. Five of our fighters are missing."

A British Air Ministry communique stated:—"On Saturday night aircraft of Fighter Command on offensive patrol attacked airfields and railway targets in France, Holland and Belgium, and shipping off the Dutch coast. One of our aircraft is missing."

Twenty-two German aircraft were destroyed by R.A.F. bombers in their raids in June, the month of Bomber Command's greatest activity over Germany, says the British Air Ministry.

MR. CHURCHILL'S OPTIMISM

MR. CHURCHILL last week told a private meeting of Conservative M.P.s that the war was going well, adding: "I am almost afraid to say how well," according to Mr. J. H. Wootton-Davies, M.P. for Heywood and Radcliffe (Lancs.), who said that the British Prime Minister gave a most encouraging picture of recent developments.

The Prime Minister is expected to make a public statement on the war position soon.—(P.A.)

£240,000 for Union Members

THE aggregate amount of bonuses secured for members of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union during the past year was £240,000. Numerically, financially and in fighting ability the union was still the greatest weapon in the hands of the Irish workers.

These points were stressed by Mr. Thomas Kennedy in his Presidential address at the annual conference of the union, which opened in Cork yesterday, and will be continued to-day.

Dealing with Emergency Powers (No. 166) Order, Mr. Kennedy said that the maximum amount of bonus payable to an adult male worker was 8s. per normal working week. Basing their calculations on the Government's cost of living index figure, it was estimated that a worker whose wages in September, 1939, at which time the figure stood at 173 points, was 60s. per week, would now, on the current figure of 275 points, require to be given an increase of 36s. per week in order to permit him to maintain his pre-war standard of existence.

Dealing with the arrangements that had been made by a number of employers during the year entitling their employés to superannuation on retirement at certain ages, Mr. Kennedy said that, if the workers by their thrift and the employers by their generosity made provision for the workers in their old age, surely it was not too much to expect that the Government, even if it did nothing to foster these schemes, would at least refrain from making their successful operation impossible. At present the working of the means test made it illegal for an aged, retired worker to obtain, in addition to his old age pension of 10s. per week, more than 6s. per week from his trade union, or former employer, or from any other source.

Mr. William O'Brien (general secretary) said that the total income of the union amounted to £46,412. Mortality benefit amounted to £2,117, the highest figure since 1925. The revenue account showed a surplus of £14,851. The total amount to the credit of the union (exclusive of local branch funds) was £215,874. The union had strengthened its financial position.

Over 80 delegates from all over Ireland are attending.

Extending a civic welcome to the delegates, the Lord Mayor (Alderman J. Hickey) said the elementary purpose for which Labour was building was to right wrongs and bring into being an ordered economic system to ensure everybody a secure and full life.

WHEN "SMUGGLING" WILL CEASE

By a Special Correspondent.

IF the tourist traffic between the North of Ireland and Eire continues on the scale of the past couple of years, there may come a day when nobody will try to smuggle anything over the border. Probably, then, all the Customs officials will give up swearing and begin to thing that life is not so bad after all.

Though the earlier experiences of thousands should have taught travellers that it is useless to try to smuggle anything past these bored-looking, but very alert, young men, still, during last week hopeful young women with new handbags or cami-knickers (in the handbags) and hopeful males with new socks, continued to attempt to run the gauntlet. As a customs man said to me during the week-end on Dundalk station platform: "Only when the whole population of the North has been over the border and back, and the whole population of Eire has gone North and returned will there be a chance of a nice quiet life for the officers. For only then will there be nobody with a hope of a successful smuggle!"

"I wish I could swop feet with you," one officer said to me, "or if I could only work without my shoes it wouldn't be so bad."

These officers are to be pitied. Feeling the iron in their souls they unmask with horrible quietness the pitiable subterfuges of would-be smugglers. Without changing their bored expressions they quietly drop confiscated goods into huge baskets. Anything from hair-setting lotion to fresh butter, from oranges to a pair of shorts. The Customs officer has the seeing eye that probes beneath the eggs (allowed) and sees the butter (confiscated) or between the heap of old garments the new one so innocently packed.

Seldom must extreme means be used to quell protests, and offenders are brought to see reason without calling in the police. Customs men and railway porters combine to point the hopelessness of getting the wrong stuff through, and the protesters give in.

Considering the thousands of passengers dealt with, the amount of friction caused is very small. The customs officers don't like it any more than the passengers; they do their job, carry out orders for which they are not responsible, and are conscientious enough not to let softness of heart do away with the effect those orders are designed to produce. If they are efficient it is the travellers who have made them so, for every trick in the bag has been tried on them.

After watching these fellows at work I decided that when next I go to the North I'll take nothing more than my toothbrush.

Sixteen thousand people from the North of Ireland left Dublin during the week-end. They queued up quietly for twenty trains, and, thanks to the efficient arrangements made by the Great Northern Railway Company, none was left behind. Embarkation instructions were given by loud speaker.

Last-minute efforts to buy whiskey to bring back over the border were frustrated by vigilant barmen, who refused to sell spirits in bottle. Even the woman who rushed into a public-house opposite Amiens Street Station and asked for a naggin "for a friend who is sick in the station," failed to make a purchase.

Railway authorities were surprised to find that incoming traffic was still large. Throughout the week-end the stream did not slacken.

Mark Forward Beats Hyperina

MR. F. S. MYERSCOUGH'S Mark Forward followed up his Baldoyle success by beating a practically better favourite, Hyperina, in the Arnott Plate at Phœnix Park on Saturday. Although the verdict was only a neck, it was a cleverly-gained win and the colt on this running must possess an excellent chance in the Phœnix Plate, in which Hyperina also is engaged.

Glengormley, despite a bad swerve after crossing the final fight, beat the Galway Hurdle candidate, Dun Angus, fairly readily in the Tramore Hurdle. Golden Jack, favourite for Galway Plate, also had an outing in this race, but came down after three-quarters of a mile. As a result of the fall R. J. O'Ryan sustained facial and rib injuries and had to be taken to hospital. He is progressing favourably.

East of Ireland Tennis Finals

BY P. D. McWEENEY.

AN exceptionally good women's singles match was the main feature of the East of Ireland lawn tennis championship finals at the Lansdowne club on Saturday. It was one of the first really pleasant days for tennis this summer, the promoting club had provided an excellent court, and both Miss Lombard and Mrs. Lister revelled in the conditions. They were fairly cracking the ball from the baseline, and a brilliant patch of play by the challenger made it a most interesting struggle right to the end.

Since winning the Irish Open singles last year, Miss Lombard has proved unbeatable; she has a consistency and concentration which none of her rivals can smake, but she was very highly tested on Saturday. After losing the first two games she took six in a row to win the first set, and when she led 4-3 in the second, she seemed to be all set for another comfortable victory. Then Mrs. Lister really began her effort. Getting real whip into her drives, she clinched her opening to some neat volleying, and won three games in a row to level the sets. When she led 5-2 in the final set it seemed as if she might shake Miss Lombard from her pinnacle, but the champion kept on plugging the ball back, and in the end it was Mrs. Lister who cracked. she had points to win two of the games subsequently, but she was tiring, and Miss Lombard went on to a 6-3 victory.

Much the best of the doubles was the mixed, in which the new combination of J. Fizgibbon and Miss M. Nichols fairly drove T. G. McVeagh and Miss Lombard off the court in the first set. In the second set they had golden opportunities of winning the first four games, but they let two of them slip from their grasp, and then collapsed almost completely. Some shrewd lobbing by Miss Lombard uncovered weaknesses overhead, and, after both Fitzgibbon and his partner had missed a succession of easy smashes, their ground strokes went to pieces also.

Four titles were retained, the only new champion being F. Kenny, who received a walk-over from R. F. Egan. In place of this final Kenny played an exhibition match with C. A. Kemp, which the latter won 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, after a delightful display of hard hitting by both men. Results:—

B. Flanagan Retains Hurdles Title

A FINE programme of open events, including the Championship of Ireland, at Guinness's Athletic Union Sports at Iveagh grounds on Saturday, attracted a very large entry, which included many leading Irish athletes.

B. J. Flanagan had little difficulty in retaining the 120 yards hurdles championship of Ireland, winning with 15 yards to spare in an all-U.C.D. finish. His brother, Donal, who had been expected to give him most trouble, fell at the first hurdle.

The other championship event, the mile cycle, provided a tight finish, M. Anderson, of Bohermeen, resisting strong challenges by S. B. Donnelly and V. Lyons to win by half a length, Anderson won the 10 kilometres point-to-point cycle championship at Dundalk recently.

J. Kiely (Kilbeggan) recorded a notable double in winning the one mile and four miles handicaps, beating a big field in each, and W. O'Mahony (Mallow) scored an easy victory in the 440 yards.

D. D. Guiney beat J. B. Byrne (Armagh), Irish champion, in winning the 16lb. shot, thus revenging his defeat by the latter at Dundalk, and T. Wall cleared 6ft. 1in. from scratch to take the high jump. The three mile cycle handicap ended in a thrilling struggle between three Round Tower men. K. Lynch beating K. Clinton by a length, with J. F. Lynch only a wheel away third.

Fine Phœnix Victory

A FINE victory for Phœnix over Pembroke, at Sydney Parade on Saturday, put the cricket league champions well on the way to securing the title again. After a bad start by Pembroke, C. William and G. J. Murray put on 89 for the third wicket, and then B. F. and S. F. Bergin added 59 for the sixth. The innings was declared at 199 for 7, Phœnix then left 2½ hours to get the runs. They got them with four minutes to spare, thanks mainly to a capital 75 by D. R. Pigot, scored in just over an hour, and fine forcing innings by J. Brophy. Score:—

Fagan (Irish Road Club). Another I.R.C. man, J. Keogh, was third.

The event was held under the auspices of the I.R.C., and they combined with it the club's championship for the Old Timers' Cup. This, too, went to Kelly, who took a gold standard medal for his time, as well as the trophy.

Irish Industrial Owners Hold Tight

CHEERFUL conditions prevailed among Irish securities on the Dublin Stock Exchange during the past week, but trading was held somewhat in check, not so much through lack of interest as to the fact that good-class securities are being tightly held. There is still a lot of money awaiting investment if only suitable securities were offering at reasonable prices.

The increase in the Dublin Transport Ordinary dividend from 2 to 3 per cent. came as a pleasant surprise to the market. Although this company had to curtail its services, run in difficulties of securing sufficient supplies of petrol, crude oil, etc., it has done well since the outbreak of war owing to the fact that private motoring is now a thing of the past. Last year Ordinary shareholders received a dividend of 6 per cent., and, under the limitation of dividends order, are entitled to the highest payment that can be made for the duration of the emergency. The financial position is sound, and the increasing revenue will no doubt help to pay for renewals and new vehicles if, and when, supplies are available. At 25/- these shares give a return of £4 16/-, and they look a sound holding. The immediate post-war prospects are considered excellent, for it is felt that it will be a long time after the end of hostilities before private motoring will become a serious competitor.

Ordinary shareholders in W. and H. M. Goulding, Ltd., are again receiving a final dividend of 3 per cent., making, as for a great many years past, a total of 6 per cent. This company is well managed, and its financial record is excellent. Any difficulties occasioned by the war were to a great degree surmounted. As a war and post-war holding they are first-class. The agricultural drive now in operation will, without doubt, be sustained long after the war, and consequently there will be a heavy demand for this company's products. They are at present hovering around 27/9.

Some months ago the Dublin Corporation created £941,710 3½ per cent. 1963/'83 Stock, and it recently changed hands at 100¾, which price it looks attractive, considering the high levels prevailing for all Gilt-edged Securities. For instance, 3½ per cent. National Security is at present standing at around 106¾. There is a slight difference in the redemption dates, as the National Security Loan is redeemable in 1956, and not later than 1961. Yet an exchange into the Dublin Corporation stock looks worth attention, for holders will be able to put money into their pockets without interfering with income.

The demand for Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company Ordinary shares goes on unabated, and the price has risen to 19/10½. The half-yearly report is due very shortly, and many people are of the opinion that the increased price of gas, which has operated for the full six months, will have a big effect on the company's earnings; but it must be borne in mind that an adverse balance of £81,736 has first to be wiped out. It is difficult to see any prospect of a dividend payment in the near future. Yet, if one is prepared to hold, they should in time pay for their keep.

There is still a decided scarcity of good-class Irish Industrial Ordinary shares, and any small lots coming on offer are commanding good prices. Some days ago a few Sunbeam Wolsey Ordinary fetched as much as 57/-. At this price, and on last year's dividend of 12½ per cent., they give a return of £4 7/8 per cent. This concern has a sound financial record, and only quite recently the managing director informed holders that the first half of the current year was the most successful since the company was formed, and the prospects for the current half-year were equally bright. He felt that it could meet any reasonable post-war competition with hope of success. These are well worth inclusion in any list of first-class industrial investments.

Policy of Cheap Money in Britain

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BUSINESS has broadened out, and there is every reason to anticipate a continuation of activity.

This, however, does not apply to Gilt-edged issues. They had their turn a few weeks ago, and as attention has been diverted elsewhere, they inevitably suffer neglect. No fears need be entertained, however, of any serious reaction. The Government's policy of cheap money is still in being and is likely to continue. At the same time, it must be confessed that in certain quarters the problems of the post-war monetary situation are receiving anxious attention. Pence-time demand for capital will be heavy, and it would not be surprising if there should be a widespread desire to liquidate Gilt-edged investments in order to provide funds for purposes connected with reconstruction. The problem of absorbing such sales will test the market severely. In other directions the same influences may operate. Industrial shares, which last week were particularly active, stand at levels showing an approximately small margin to the matter of yield above fixed investment stocks.

It is true that in some cases present prices reflect hopes for the future rather than a valuation but these by no means exhaust the list, and there seems reason in the suggestion that a higher yield than 3½ to 4 per cent. now available on many "equity" investments, will one day be regarded as insufficient

Irish Times

MONDAY, JULY 19, 1943.

The First Week

After eight days fighting in Sicily is becoming increasingly violent, but it is possible now to recognise the general pattern of Anglo-American strategy on the island. The British, under the experienced leadership of General Sir Bernard Montgomery, are driving along the eastern coast, where they are reported to have reached the southern outskirts of Catania, while the Americans seem to be making a two-fold thrust, one along the southern coast, and the other northwards from the Gela-Licata line, in an effort to gain possession of Enna, the geographical centre of Sicily, and the nerve centre of the island's main communications. The capture of Enna by the Allies would result in the cutting of Sicily in two. Details are lacking regarding the precise measure of progress that has been made by the British Eighth Army since it launched its main attack on the Lentini "bottle-neck" towards the end of last week. It seems to have managed to penetrate into the Catanian plain, for there are reports of intense fighting in the city's suburbs. It seems to be quite certain that Catania, a beautiful city and larger than Cork, has been reduced to a pitiable condition. Not only has it been bombed mercilessly from the air and shelled by mobile artillery on land, but a British capital ship on Saturday sailed into Catania bay, and from a range of only five miles subjected the city to broadsides from its big guns for half an hour in broad daylight. British bombers also are keeping the road and railway between Catania and Messina under continuous bombardment.

In the American sector, General Patton's troops are said to have advanced some twenty-two miles inland from Gela. Apparently they have reached the neighbourhood of Caltanissetta, and their tanks were reported yesterday at a point only seventeen miles from Enna. Along the coast the Americans claim to have captured both Agrigento and Porto Empedocle. It seems, therefore, that within little more than a week the Anglo-American allies have captured roughly one-third of Sicily's territory, including some of its most useful ports and most of its airfields. They have taken more than 30,000 prisoners, two-thirds of whom have fallen into American hands. The fiercest resistance is being offered by the Axis forces who have been defending Catania, the capture of which would give the Allies their first vital objective, and close the first phase of the battle for Sicily. It was announced yesterday that the Commander-in-Chief of the Axis forces on the island is the Italian General Guzzoni. Two facts emerge clearly from the events of the last week. One is that the British and Americans have a definite superiority in the air; the other is that the British Navy is in complete control of the Sicilian Channel and at least portion of the Ionian Sea. Without overwhelming sea-power, reinforced by air strength, the Allies never could have established their bridgeheads in Sicily. They landed nearly all their troops by sea, whereas, in the case of Crete, the Germans used air-borne units almost exclusively. Hitherto, although the fighting in Sicily is stated by both sides to have been "bitter and fierce," it hardly has been on a sufficiently large scale yet to justify the description of a "second front." The Italian commentators and newspapers make no secret of the fact that a definite breach has been made in the outer defences of the European fortress; but the total number of troops involved is only a fraction of those that are taking part in the Orel offensive, and, until the general situation develops more clearly it would be premature to conclude that the British and Americans have committed themselves to really major operations.

A Seven-Year Plan

The most important step in educational development since the first introduction of compulsory schooling has been marked by the White Paper which the President of the Board of Education presented to the House of Commons on Friday. The scheme it embodies is, literally, a complete reformation of the existing system. Mr. Butler appears to have done a job which a town-planner might envy—preserving the parts of the existing structure which are satisfactory, designing complete new sections, welding the whole together into a single, coherent organism. As The Times remarks, "the crucial and overriding fact about the bill to be introduced into Parliament in the autumn, and the essential element in the educational advance it embodies," is that it is based on "a new and fundamentally sound principle—that education is a continuous process conducted in successive stages." The plan covers the whole field of education, and it is impossible in a brief article to do more than mention its main provisions. Additional facilities are to be provided for training children below primary school age, with extra nursery schools where they are needed. Children will attend the primary school up to the age of 11; classes are to be decreased in size. Since "the Government hold that there is nothing to be aid in favour of a system which subjects children at the age of 11 to the strain of a competitive examination, on which not only their future schooling, but their future careers, may depend"—an interesting point, in view of the fact that a compulsory examination has been instituted recently for Irish primary schools—children will be classified by more general tests before going to the appropriate secondary school. If a wrong decision is made, a transfer can be made later. Secondary schools will be divided into three main branches—grammar, modern, and vocational. The age for leaving will be raised at once to 15, and later probably to 16. Up to the age of 18, those who are not receiving full-time education otherwise will be required to attend a Young People's College, at first for one day a week—"but this is clearly a minimum." "For young persons of both sexes in all appropriate cases the time may be used for technical or vocational education related to their employment, for others a variety of courses, including handicrafts and the domestic arts, designed to stimulate interests, keep minds alert, and create resources of satisfaction and self-development." Local authorities will have a duty to provide facilities for technical education, and it is hoped that closer collaboration between industry and the education service will secure a system of training more ordered than at present, and less dependent on the initiative and ambition of the individual. Access to universities will be made still easier for the needy student. Finally, the plan speaks briefly of the proper organisation of adult education. A committee is at present investigating the question of the supply and training of teachers of the proper calibre. There are a few additional points of importance, apart from administrative changes which have little significance to Irish educationists. Fees are to be abolished in publicly-maintained secondary schools. Voluntary schools will continue to exist, but under a greater measure of Government control, and with greater financial assistance; and the suitability of buildings will be an important consideration. "The present power of authorities to provide school meals and milk is to be converted into a duty"; clothing and footwear will be supplied free to poor children; and a comprehensive health service, free of all charge, will be instituted. Special provision is made for denominational schools. The programme will not come into force until after the war, and it is estimated that it will take seven years to complete. In the meantime, when the bill comes before the Houses for debate and enactment, much modification may be expected. Few, however, will disagree with the main lines of the plan; and few will deny that Mr. Butler and his colleagues have done a solid, a thorough, and an enlightened piece of work.

T.C.D. NOTES

BY OUR CORRESPONDENT.

TO-DAY the Library opens again, and the dullest period of the summer vacation in College will be over.

A recent publication of note was that of "The Lion and the Oil-Palm," being the inaugural address delivered by E. Udo Udoma at the opening meeting of the Philosophical Society for the session 1942-43, when Dr. Julian Huxley, Professor MacMillan, Sean O Faolain and Senator Sir John Keane addressed an audience that filled the large hall to capacity, and when hundreds were unable to gain admission. The essay is preceded by a foreword by A. Creech Jones, M.P.

Mr. Udoma is well qualified to write on the colonial problem, for he is in the position of uniting the subjective sympathy of an African born and bred with the more objective outlook of the European familiar with the problems that confront both sides. His essay is subjective enough to make interesting reading, and objective enough to be intelligent. Also included in the booklet is a prize essay, "The Clash of Cultures," which was delivered some years ago before a general public meeting of the Philosophical Society. It is printed at the University Press, Dublin, by Ponsonby and Gibbs, and costs one shilling.

The Gold Medal of the Historical Society for Oratory for the session 1942-43 has been awarded to A. N. Jeffares, who is Auditor-elect of the Society. The Silver Medal was won by J. L. Lord, the outgoing Auditor. Marked thanks go to the following: G. C. Lewis-Crosby, T. H. Lyle, G. B. Wigoder, W. E. B. Magill, M. B. Yeats, J. A. Wachuku, H. S. Reiss, J. E. Stokes.

Those appointed to the Library Committee of the Society for the session 1943-44 are:—J. A. Wachuku, M. B. Yeats, W. E. Seeds, F. I. Hurley, Sch.

FILM NOTES

BY OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

Aloma of the South Seas (Royal)—The presence of Dorothy Lamour on a South Sea island always seems to lead up to a hurricane, typhoon or tornado. This time her rather naive romance with Jon Hall (with whom she co-starred in "Hurricane") ends with the eruption of an enormous volcano, which discharges molten lava and boulders in terrific style, presumably killing all but the five principals.

It is photographed in particularly beautiful technicolour, which more than atones for the improbabilities of the story. Apart from a good performance by a dark-haired woman who plays the wife of the bad man of the island, the standard of acting preserves a uniform mediocrity, but the film is well worth a visit for the sake of the last twelve minutes.

Ice Capades Revue (Adelphi) will appeal to those who enjoyed the original "Ice Capades" shown in this cinema in January of last year. It presents a series of attractive skating scenes, together with some clever comedy, linked together by a highly ingenuous story. Ellen Drew's acting ability seems to have fallen off considerably since the days of "French Without Tears," but her part admittedly gives her next to no opportunities. Jerry Colonna and Barbara Jo Allen ("Vera Vague" of the "Bob Hope Half-Hour") put over their own brand of snappy crosstalk with a great wealth of technique and innuendo. By no means a remarkable picture, but adequate entertainment.

Fish, the support, has an oddly assorted cast, with players like Susan Peters, Lee Bowman and Virginia Grey supporting the three character actresses, Marjorie Main, Zasu Pitts and Aline McMahon. I dislike all character actresses in general, and these three in particular, which prejudiced me against the picture, whose humour seems rather heavy and rather out of date.

Flight Lieutenant (Carlton) is a very well-produced little melodrama, with a nicely graded performance by Glenn Ford, as the son of a famous pilot, whose flying licence has been suspended for involving a plane in an accident at a time when he was drunk. The credit titles at the beginning state that the screen play is by one Michael Blankfort, but a few of the incidents towards the end of the picture are more suggestive of Hans Andersen. Go to it in at all a gullible mood and you will enjoy it thoroughly. The second feature, Trouble Through Billets, is really intended for American audiences, and much of its fun could only be appreciated by those who have experienced the practical domestic difficulties of life in that country since the outbreak of war.

MISS ALICE POWELL

AN APPRECIATION.

The Co. Wicklow Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has suffered a grievous loss by the retirement, through ill-health, of its Honorary Secretary, Miss Alice Powell. For 32 years she devoted her time and abilities to the protection of animals. She possessed that invaluable combination—a soft heart and a hard head, and her work bore witness to it.

To the general public her greatest achievement was the introduction of humane slaughter into Bray. At a time when the idea was new, and the butchers intensely hostile to it, she persuaded the authorities to pass a bye-law making it compulsory. Who can estimate the number of animals who owe to her efforts a merciful death instead of one of torture? It was in recognition of this wonderful success that the Dublin S.P.C.A. presented to her their highest award—the Silver Medal. When they, encouraged by her example, in their turn attacked the same abuse, it was to Miss Alice Powell that they turned for practical help and advice, and from her they received it freely. In their office may be seen the framed receipt, signed by her, for the first humane killer bought by them for use in Dublin.

The introduction of humane slaughter was a striking achievement, but small when compared with the daily work for the prevention of all cruelty which was done throughout the 32 years by Miss Alice Powell. Her keen, practical mind saw that prevention is better than cure, and she instituted her Pony and Donkey Show. Year after year at this event, animals were shown which did credit to their owners. By a happy thought she linked the present work of her Society to the long past work of Richard Martin, M.P., by affixing to the harness specially made for the prize-winning donkey a brass medallion commemorating the pioneer work of "Humanity Dick."

She recognised the difficulty under which the poor man labours of getting treatment for a sick animal, and to remove this, perhaps unintentional cruelty, she established a well-equipped Animals' Dispensary in Bray. Here, again, she strove to prevent cruelty by removing the cause.

The Wicklow Society is happy in having such an example to put before the honorary secretaries of the future. They may hope to continue Miss Alice Powell's work, but they will find it difficult to excel it.—(L.H.)

Research Bureau

There was a fearful row at the Bureau the other day. Sir Myles na gCopaleen (the da) arrived unexpectedly and it was obvious to all present that he wasn't feeling himself. (Truth to tell, he was feeling the tyres of his bicycle, fearing he had so stained a slope puncture). He gave the savants he employs there a dressing down, a going over and a word in season, not to mention those pleasing but none too plentiful domestic veracities, few home truths. In brief, he complained that they had not done a tap for months. This charge was bitterly re-scented by the scientists. The charge hand (whose name happens to be George Shand) went to his drawing board and in two ticks had run up the blue prints of the tap mentioned. (He found he couldn't run down again and had to be rescued with a ladder).

Irish faucet factors should study this drawing very closely. Not only does it give you two taps in one, thus saving metal in the emergency, but enables you to draw either hot water or cold water or both simultaneously, mixed to a desired temperature. If you think this is an effete and decadent convenience, there is nothing to prevent you from connecting the cold water pipe to a barrel of good Irish malt and providing yourself and your family with scalding punch for drinking and washing purposes. Think of the fine affectation of having handsome decanters full of water to pass to your guests so that they may adulterate what they get from the tap.

Extract

"Celery will already have been planted in many gardens, but there is still a week in which to plant it successfully. A double row of pants with 8 inches between them in a well-manured trench 18 inches wide should give good results.

"Leeks can be planted in various ways, in trenches like celery, or in a slit made with a spade . . ."

Needless to say there is a misprint there. For leeks read breeks.
